La Herradura and Almuñécar

At the westernmost tip of the Tropical Coast, just before the town of Almuñécar, stands La Herradura. A precoce town, it is cut off from the rest of Spain by a range of mountains, and is only accessible by road. One of the most important cities in the Mediterranean, La Herradura is surrounded by mountains and is a popular destination for tourists.

Salobreña

Salobreña stands at the heart of the Tropical Coast. The opulent town, with its winding streets and walkways, is a sight to behold. In the top Archangelic architecture of its old town centre, Salobreña offers a view of the sea and the mountains.

Motril

Motril is a small fishing village with a rich history. It is located on the Mediterranean Sea, and is home to a number of marinas and small ports. The town is famous for its fresh seafood, which is enjoyed by locals and tourists alike.

El litoral oriental

Leaving Motril, we come to the east coast, with its sparkling beaches and turquoise waters. The coastline is dotted with small towns and villages, each with its own unique charm.

Cuisine

Mustard cakes and fish are the specialty of this region. Mustard cakes are a traditional dish in the area, and are often served with fish or meat. Fish is also a popular choice, with local seafood being the main ingredient.

Costa Tropical

The Costa Tropical offers a wide range of activities and attractions for all tastes. Whether you're looking for a relaxing holiday or an adventure, there's something for everyone in this beautiful region.
